

HEADERS & LATERALS

- Metal headers and laterals are essential components in industrial piping systems, forming the core network for efficiently distributing fluids
- Constructed from stainless steel or carbon steel, metal headers and laterals can withstand high pressures and extreme temperatures
- Available in corrosion-resistant materials, they are ideal for harsh environments that can damage less robust piping systems

